Overview

I am looking to join a new team where I can grow as a software engineer (full-stack or front-end) and have opportunities to gain leadership skills in product or engineering management.

As a user-centric product developer, I value the outcome of my work and strive to make tangible impact to users. Through collaboration, I aim to gain actionable insights from stakeholders across an organization to make data-informed decisions. Previous entrepreneurial experiences has helped me appreciate company business goals, metrics and culture.

I'm as comfortable inside my terminal as I am with design tools. On a day to day basis, I use Ruby on Rails, JavaScript, SCSS, and other frontend technologies. While most of my craftsmanship lands in code, I also use digital prototyping tools to design or validate ideas as needed.
